Product Specific Updates

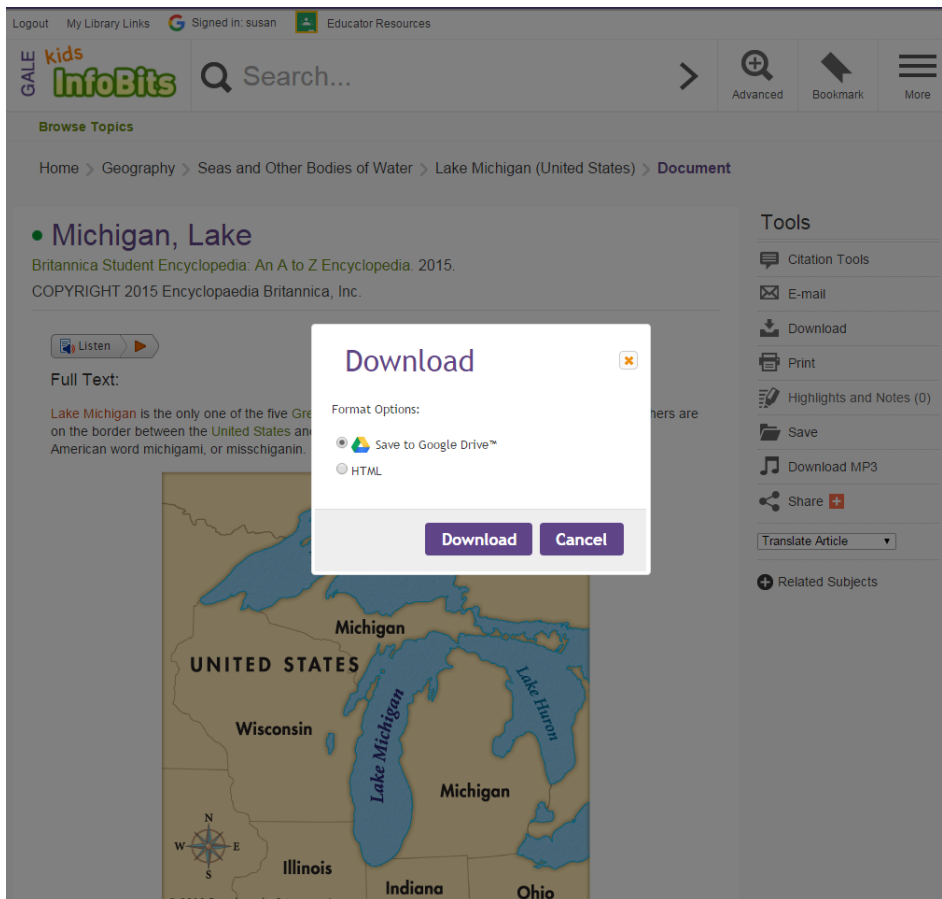

In the month of December, two new exciting enhancements were made to Kids InfoBits – a mobile responsive design and Google Integration – providing users with even easier access to their Kids InfoBits content. Here is what you'll see:

Mobile Responsive Design – A new optimized display, intuitive interface, and improved user experience for young learners on any device, desktop or mobile.

Integrated Google Tools – After authentication, users can log in using their Google Account credentials enabling access to Google Apps for Education tools, like Gmail, Drive, Docs, and more, allowing users to easily download and share articles.

Google Classroom Integration – Programming Librarians may use the Classroom share button to assign and have users turn in content from third party websites to Google Classroom.

Literature Resource Center fully transitioned to a mobile-responsive interface, with enhanced features in December. If you took advantage of an early migration before December, we hope you are enjoying your new experience!

The outstanding content remains the same, as well as the ways you search. Here are the exciting changes:

- Google Drive Integration: After authentication, users can seamlessly login with their Google Apps for Education account to access tools like Google Drive and Docs Learn more
- New Look and Feel: Modern design with high-quality and easy-to-use toolset
- Mobile Responsive Design: Optimized for all screen sizes, regardless of device
- Improved Navigation: Content featured in prime locations with toolbars and filters on the right
- Enhanced Accessibility: High-contrast banners and improved tool buttons make web content easier to locate
